

MONTREAL MORTALITY.—We print to-day Dr. Carpenter's letter on the mortality of Montreal, in opposition to Experience, who very reasonably doubts whether Montreal is quite so unhealthy a place, as compared to other cities, as Dr. Carpenter has represented it to be. We fear the controversy is a very dry one in detail, though the results are of vast interest to all of us; but readers who are desirous of understanding the merit of the dispute would do well to compare Dr. Carpenter's figures in the latter with those of "Experience's" pamphlet, as no intelligent appreciation of the facts can be otherwise obtained.
